FIGHT WATER DIVERSION AND SAVE MINNESOTA!

Two Bandits Gag, Bind Driver, Rob Him of $700

BERNARD MRAZ FORCED AT POINT OF GUN TO DRIVE INTO SIDE-ROAD

WORKS HIS WAY CLEAR OF THE "STRAIT-JACKET"; HUNT CONTINUES TODAY

Gagging him and binding his hands and feet behind his back, leaving him in a cornfield, two masked bandits robbed Bernard Mraz, 20-year-old driver of a Yellow Candy Cash Car, of $700 after forcing him at the point of a gun to drive to a side-road off highway No. 27 last night.

Working his way clear of the rope and handkerchief "strait-jacket," by squirming for half an hour in the cornfield, "Bun" Mraz, 613 South Ninth Street, Brainerd, returned to the truck owned by his brother, Gregory J. Mraz, came to Brainerd and gave the alarm.

Agencies throughout the state aided today in search of the pair while Sheriff Claus A. Theorin and Deputy Sheriff C. W. Oberg conducted the hunt in this county.

Mraz was first accosted by one of the bandits as he entered the truck at Crow Wing about 7:30 P. M. He was about to close the door when a man stepped inside the cab, thrust a gun in his ribs and commanded him to drive north on the highway. His accomplice followed in a car to the rear. One mile north of Crow Wing the bandit ordered Mraz to drive into a side-road to the left. Half a mile from the main road in a clump of heavy timber, the bandit instructed Mraz to stop the truck and "get out." The accomplice then joined his partner, and the two marched Mraz through the woods into a cornfield. There they robbed him of $6 in silver and learned, after threatening him, where the remainder of the day's collections was hidden. They then put a handkerchief in Mraz's mouth and tied a handkerchief over his mouth and around his head. Forcing his hands and feet behind his back, they tied him with a rope and left him in a human knot. The bandits then returned to the truck and robbed it of cash, checks and negotiable papers valued at $700. They also took 15,000 cigarettes in cartons.

Mraz furnished authorities with the following description of the pair:

One wore overalls, was heavily bearded, about 5 feet 11 inches tall and his calmness that of a professional.

The other wore a light suit, was shorter, lighter complexioned and appeared nervous.

Mraz described his experiences as "never to be forgotten." While he was uninjured, the men threatened him with bodily harm should he not obey their wishes.

Today sheriff's men found a home-made blackjack near the spot where Mraz was robbed. The blackjack consisted of a bar of soap bound in a handkerchief.

Sheriff Theorin explained that this type of blackjack was in common use by criminals and was of the opinion that the two men were professionals who had scouted the car and learned of the amount of receipts taken in on a collection tour.

The robbery occurred after Mraz had left the Fanny Young store at Crow Wing. At the store while Mraz visited it was Mr. and Mrs. George West, friends of the proprietress.

Sheriff Theorin suspects a youth who appeared in the store previous to the robbery and purchased a bag of caramel candies since a bag of the same candy was also stolen from the truck.

"I was about to start the truck and return home when in closing the door I grabbed a man's arm. I looked out and saw a man looking at me. He told me to start the car and drive north on the highway. He climbed in beside me and poked a gun in my ribs. He told me to look back and see if another car was coming. I looked in the mirror and saw a car following. It had the appearance of a Ford roadster and had only one light shining. I tried to get the license number but it was too dark to see. I was sure the man following in the car was an accomplice," said Bernard Mraz in telling of the robbery.

"After driving a mile on the highway the man told me to drive left into a side-road. About a half mile from the main road I was told to stop and get out. The accomplice then arrived and they bound my hands behind my back and walked me through a clump of trees over to a cornfield. Here they took between $6 and $7 in silver from my pockets and demanded to know where the rest was. I told them in the seat of the truck. They

OTHER POLITICAL LEADERS, WELL ENTRENCHED, FIND INFLUENCE WANING

(By United States) Two of the United States senate's well known figures, Cole Blease of South Carolina and Joseph Ransdell of Louisiana were deprived of their senate seats by their electorate yesterday.

Blease was defeated in a run-off primary by James F. Byrnes, a pro-Smith man in 1928, while in Louisiana Governor Huey P. Long defeated the veteran Ransdell in the democratic primary which is tantamount to election.

Washington—Outstanding congressional fight saw Ralph A. Horr, a wet, defeat John Miller, dry, in the first district of the republican nomination. Colorado—George H. Shaw led William V. Hodges by 9,000 for the republican nomination while Edward P. Costigan won the democratic senatorial nomination. Shaw's victory was conceded as a defeat to the forces of United States Senator Phipps, who was not a candidate for re-election.

Arizona—Former Governor W. P. Hunt won the democratic gubernatorial nomination while Governor Phillips was unopposed for the republican nomination.

New Hampshire—Former Governor John G. Winant won the republican gubernatorial nomination, upsetting tradition that a governor in New Hampshire can serve only one term. Winant is expected to be a candidate for Senator Moses' senate seat in 1932. Moses did not support Winant.

Vermont—Lieutenant Governor Stanley C. Wilson apparently has won the gubernatorial nomination while Governor John E. Weeks led in his race for the congressional nomination from the first district.

Michigan—Frank Murphy was elected mayor of Detroit to replace the recalled Charles Bowles; Senator James Couzens was renominated for the senate, while Attorney General Wilbur M. Brucker led in the republican gubernatorial race. One congressional race showed Representative Louis C. Crampton, a dry, with a lead of only 35 votes over his wet opponent, Jess P. Wolcott.

They told me they would send help out in half an hour. I then waited until I heard the car turn south. I was in a very uncomfortable position so I squirmed about a lot. First I put my head into the ground and got the gag free and then I worked my hands out of the rope. Soon I had my feet free. When I returned to the truck the lights had been disconnected and the key was taken. Luckily the ignition was not locked and I was able to start the truck. I then returned to Brainerd and notified Mr. Theorin," Mraz said.

Sheriff Theorin telephoned the alarm to Staples, Minneapolis and Elk River and had the robbery broadcast over WCCO.

The loss is partially covered by hold-up insurance.

FIND TRACES OF FRANKLIN ARCTIC EXPEDITION

LATTER TRIED TO CONQUER THE NORTH POLE AREA AND FAILED

W. E. GILBERT, PILOT OF BURWASH AIR EXPEDITION, MAKES REPORT

Edmonton, Alberta, Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Traces of Sir John Franklin and his ill-fated expedition which tried to conquer the Arctic wastes and failed, were reported found today by W. E. Gilbert, pilot of the Burwash air expedition to the North magnetic pole.

Valuable data concerning the far north and the expedition whose fate has remained a mystery for nearly a century was found on the sites of the camps used by the exploring party 80 years ago. Major L. T. Burwash, dominion government explorer, made the discovery. Details of the findings are being sent to the Canadian government at Ottawa.

The Burwash expedition has completed mapping of the north magnetic pole and surrounding area by aerial photography. In addition the fliers mapped more than 2,000 miles of Canada's Arctic coast line, surveying territory which has heretofore been uncharted. Many islands and reefs which have added to the dangers of Arctic navigation were also charted.

Franklin was a noted English sailor and explorer who lost his life in an effort to discover the northwest passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific in June, 1847.

His ships were last seen in July, 1848, by a whaling party in Baffin Bay. During the next 12 years, the British government sent out 39 expeditions to search for the party.

Finally in 1857, McClintock discovered first traces of the party showing that before his death Franklin had discovered the northwest passage but had failed to traverse it.

In the past 59 years Eskimos have occasionally come across equipment of the party. The expedition apparently abandoned their ships after being caught in the polar ice and made for King William Land.

Major Burwash, noted Arctic explorer, was sent to search for traces of the expedition by the Canadian government. He left by plane three weeks ago with orders to attempt to find the spot where the Franklin party came to grief.

It is believed that he has made important discoveries. Burwash is expected to arrive Friday or Saturday.

MAY RECOMMEND MAKING 2.75 PER CENT BEER LEGAL

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor probably will recommend to the organization at its annual meeting at Boston October 6 that manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer be legalized, William Green, president of the federation, said today.

The executive council meeting here received a request from the United Brewery Workers' union, Green said, asking that the recommendation be made.

Legalization of 2.75 per cent beer, he said, would give employment to several hundred thousand workers and contribute to the income of as many more.

MAKE WHISKEY FOR MEDICINAL USE IN NATION

2,000,000 GALLONS BOURBON AND RYE WHISKEY TO BE MANUFACTURED

FOS FIRST TIME SINCE PROHIBITION DAYS, GOVERNMENT AUTHORIZES DISTILLING

By CECIL OWEN United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Permits for manufacture of an additional 2,000,000 gallons of bourbon and rye whiskey for medicinal purposes are soon to be issued by the treasury, it was learned today.

For the first time since pre-prohibition days, the treasury this year authorized manufacture of whiskey to replenish medicinal stocks.

Six distilleries in Kentucky and Pennsylvania are producing 2,000,000 gallons this year.

Devison has now been reached to manufacture a similar quantity next year and permits are expected to be issued to the same distilleries reopened this year.

The United States annually consume about 1,500,000 gallons medicinal whiskey. Manufacture of 2,000,000 gallons is necessary, to allow for evaporation and barrel leakage during the four year aging period.

Stocks of medicinal liquor now on hand now aggregate about 8,000,000 gallons.

Since prohibition, the amount of whiskey prescribed by physicians has varied little from year to year and has shown little increase in recent years.

Reports received here from St. Paul that government officials are seriously considering a plan to permit manufacture of beer containing more than 1/4 of 1 per cent alcohol but non-intoxicating, as an aid to unemployment were discounted at the treasury and justice department. Congressional action would be required before beer containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol could be legally produced, it was pointed out by Howard Jones, acting prohibition director.

NEW ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT HAS STABILITY

GROWING CONFIDENCE IN ITS ABILITY TO MAINTAIN NATIONAL PROSPERITY

DECISIVE ACTION OF GEN. URUBURU QUICKLY SETTLES ANY STREET FIGHTING

By WILLIAM FOLGER (United Press Staff Correspondent) (Copyright, 1930, by United Press)

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10.—A growing confidence in the new Argentine government's ability to maintain and foster national prosperity was apparent on all sides today.

The quick and decisive action with which Gen. Jose E. Uruburu met the situation arising from Monday night's street fighting seems to have allayed many fears. It was felt everywhere that the government had come through its first test of strength successfully.

With a score of influential followers of former President Hipolito Yrigoyen under arrest and government troops maintaining tranquility, the capital regarded the possibility of a strong counter-revolutionary movement as remote, and today's newspapers predicted an early return to normalcy.

Forging ahead with new policies, the government revealed that the first question it will take up will be that of appointing an ambassador to the United States, thus filling a vacancy of several years' standing.

Despite rumors to the contrary, there were no known executions of government enemies in Buenos Aires yesterday. General Augustin Justo, commanding the military forces of the country, issued the following statement:

"I authorize the United Press to say on my word of honor that there have been no executions in Buenos Aires in connection with last night's (Monday night's) fighting. The report is absolutely false."

Simultaneous with an important meeting of the cabinet to discuss the financial situation, representatives of 14 banks met and decided to offer the government a loan of 50,000,000 pesos for 180 days at five per cent interest without any guarantees. It was understood the offer probably would be formulated today.

Government officials believed the improvement in Argentine bonds and the peso was one of the chief victories of the revolution.

WANTED TO SMOKE LIKE BIG MEN

13-YEAR-OLD LAD OF CALEDONIA CHARGED WITH MAIL STEALING

Caledonia, Minn., Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Because he wanted to smoke like "big men," although he had neither his parents' consent to do so nor the money to buy cigarettes, a 13-year-old boy today awaited hearing in Houston county juvenile court on charges of mail stealing.

Postal inspectors arrested the lad after a search for nearly a year to find where mail addressed to the register of deeds had been disappearing.

They found it, and the boy too, in an old barn, used as a safe retreat by youngsters where they might come to smoke cigarettes away from the prying eyes of parents.

"I only took the mail to get money to buy cigarettes," the boy confessed referring to small fees of 25 or 50 cents that are often sent with legal papers to be recorded.

The clue which led to the finding of the lad was the discovery of a lot of legal documents in the barn by workmen who were repairing it.

GRAF ZEPPELIN LEAVES MOSCOW FOR HOME PORT

Dr. Hugo Eckener and the crew and passengers were received by high officials of the government and entertained at a banquet at the airdrome.

HURLEY INSPECTS MAJOR FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT

BIRDS POINT SPILLWAY DESIGNED TO PROTECT CAIRO, ILL., FROM FLOODS

FROM VANTAGE POINT OF 5,000 FEET ALTITUDE HE WILL FLY OVER PROJECT

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard the Steamboat Mississippi on the Mississippi, Sept. 10.—The first of the major flood control projects on the lower Mississippi, the Birds Point, Nel Madrid, spillway, was designated for inspection by Secretary of War Hurley today as he continued down the river.

Designed to protect Cairo, Illinois, from floods, the spillway has been the focal point of controversy in adjacent sections of the river, some interests contending it will be a strong safeguard, and others that it creates a new hazard. From a vantage point of 5,000 feet aloft in an army plane Hurley plans to view it as a whole.

Hurley has ordered his personal pilot, Lieut. C. W. Cousland, to meet him at Cairo with an army transport plane. During his survey of the Mississippi the war secretary plans to use the ship to inspect many angles of proposed improvements.

First reaction to Hurley's announced investigation of charges that some contractors on river work for the government have reduced wages below those obtaining when their contracts were made was received today by Hurley in a telegram from John P. Frey of the American Federation of Labor.

"Congratulations on your action," Frey wired. "Your statement that wages for civilians employed on flood control work would not be reduced and your action in ordering an investigation of alleged reductions by private contractors engaged in flood control work was timely and highly advisable."

Harry Jacobs, Louisiana state engineer, wired Hurley today asking permission to join the secretary's inspection party at Helena, Ark., and explain the Louisiana plan of flood control. He was extended a welcome.

Last night Hurley interrupted his study of flood control to witness an old style Mississippi show boat play. The secretary's boat was passing at Grand Tower, Illinois, when the notes of a callopie were heard across the water.

The war secretary ordered his boat put about. He was welcomed aboard the floating theatre and with his party listened to a mingled repertoire of drama and comedy.

CAPONE CROWD IN FINISH FIGHT

FORCES OF LAW AND ORDER ARRAYED AGAINST THEM AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Battle lines were drawn today for a "revolutionary" war to the finish between two powerful "cooperative" armies in Chicago.

On one side were aligned the city's gangsters and her racketeers, rallying to the battle cry of "Scarface" Al Capone that they must fight or perish together.

The forces of law and order, big business and labor made up the contingents of the opposing army. They rallied in answer to the defiant challenge of Judge John P. McGorty that "racketeering must be stamped out now and forever."

The judge's challenge was delivered to the September grand jury. The order and its immediate result followed closely reports Capone was organizing all the city's gangsters and racketeers under his banner of "Al for all and all for Al."

State's Attorney John A. Swanson was to go before the grand jury today, offering the services of his department in the new "cooperative" movement.

As the opposing armies were assembled, the racketeers fired the first shot, a bomb which exploded in the doorway of the Maison Lorraine, a beauty parlor.

Owners of the Maison Lorraine had refused to pay the tribute which one of Chicago's 148 racketeers agencies demands for "protecting" all beauty parlors.

FORCES RALLY TO FIGHT FOR RIGHTS, FUTURE OF STATE

INSIST UPON PERMANENT MINIMUM WATER LEVEL IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA LAKES

THOUSANDS OF FISH ARE DEAD, THE RESULT OF THE OPENING OF FEDERAL DAMS

Fight any unnecessary water diversion and save Minnesota!

With this as their banner, Northern Minnesota will rally its forces to the man to oppose further proposed plans to divert water from its lakes and will endorse a resolution at a lakes levels meeting Thursday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to recommend to the U. S. War Department the establishment of a permanent minimum water level to keep enough water in its lakes to preserve shore lines and fish life.

A very unpleasant taste of what may result in the loss of millions of dollars annually to Minnesota from tourists unless checked has already been stomachached by the murder of thousands of whitefish in Gull and Cross lakes due to the opening of government dams for the six-foot Mississippi river channel.

What will be the ultimate result if a nine-foot channel in the river is established?

To what figure will the income of over $90,000,000 in tourist business annually in the state shrink to?

What will Northern Minnesota do with mud flats with thousands of beautiful summer cottages stranded on bleak shore lines, its trees dying? Honest in their belief that every human resident of Minnesota will suffer and the suffering will heighten each year should diversion of lake water continue to satisfy an obsession that water transportation of freight will lower rates, Northern Minnesota manufacturers, resort owners, farmers and city dwellers are aroused and the meeting Thursday will find a large group gathered to unite in taking steps for their protection and that of the state, and nation as a whole.

The lowering of water by the opening of dams forcing cold water out and the subsequent settling of hot water was blamed today by A. P. Cardie, deputy game warden, Brainerd, for the killing of thousands of whitefish at Cross and Gull lakes.

A visit to either of these lakes will substantiate this statement. One cannot walk a yard on the shore line of either lake without finding dead fish. The stench is sickening, the sight unbearable.

"There is no question in my mind but that the loss of these fish is directly due to the sudden lowering of the lakes through the opening of the dams. If Northern Minnesota lakes are to be sacrificed for the benefit of a purely commercial enterprise, then Northern Minnesota must fight. And it will be a fight in which the whole section must engage. If the government shows the section no more consideration in the enlargement of the waterways project than it has in the handling of the water levels program, we are in for a beating. Our lakes and wild life are our best asset and they must not be damaged, nine-foot waterway or no nine-foot waterway."

Game Warden Cardie declared. Thousands of fish have been caught as they left the deep water to feed in the shallows. They become choked by the hot water. Cross and Whitefish lakes dropped 34 inches this year and Big Trout lake, once one of the most beautiful in the north with a shore line covered with pines and expensive summer cottages has receded about 200 yards, leaving that part of the shore line an eye sore, caked with mud and sand.

"When you pull down one lake you are pulling them all down. When you divert water from Gull lake you lower Hubert and other lakes in the country. Everyone in the state likes to fish, they like to eat fish caught from the lakes. Take the water out and you'll have no fish," Mr. Cardie said.

The only lakes in the district where fish were killed were those where government dams are located. Mille Lacs is an exception because it is a large lake and very shallow. Many fish are expected to die in that lake every year.

"Everyone in the community should be interested in preserving the lakes and should fight tooth and nail," Mr. Cardie declared.

To Form Organization

The meeting Thursday will also result in the formation of a permanent organization to look after the interests of Northern Minnesota's lakes.

This organization will carry the fight through to the finish and will receive the whole-hearted support of the north country.

The meeting will be opened at 2:30 P. M. by C. A. Ryan, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Congressman Harold Knutson who was originally instrumental in calling the meeting, will be one of the speakers. He announced recently he would introduce a bill in congress at the December session setting a minimum water level for the lakes beyond which

MAKE WHISKEY FOR MEDICINAL USE IN NATION

2,000,000 GALLONS BOURBON AND RYE WHISKEY TO BE MANUFACTURED

POS FIRST TIME SINCE PRE-PROHIBITION DAYS, GOVERNMENT AUTHORIZES DISTILLING

By CECIL OWEN

United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Permits for manufacture of an additional 2,000,000 gallons of bourbon and rye whiskey for medicinal purposes are soon to be issued by the treasury, it was learned today.

For the first time since pre-prohibition days, the treasury this year authorized manufacture of whiskey to replenish medicinal stocks.

Six distilleries in Kentucky and Pennsylvania are producing 2,000,000 gallons this year.

Devison has now been reached to manufacture a similar quantity next year and permits are expected to be issued to the same distilleries reopened this year.

The United States annually consume about 1,500,000 gallons medicinal whiskey. Manufacture of 2,000,000 gallons is necessary, to allow for evaporation and barrel leakage during the four year aging period.

Stocks of medicinal liquor now on hand now aggregate about 8,000,000 gallons.

Since prohibition, the amount of whiskey prescribed by physicians has varied little from year to year and has shown little increase in recent years.

Reports received here from St. Paul that government officials are seriously considering a plan to permit manufacture of beer containing more than 1/2 of 1 per cent alcohol but non-intoxicating, as an aid to unemployment were discounted at the treasury and justice department. Congressional action would be required before beer containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol could be legally produced, it was pointed out by Howard Jones, acting prohibition director.

NEW ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT HAS STABILITY

GROWING CONFIDENCE IN ITS ABILITY TO MAINTAIN NATIONAL PROSPERITY

DECISIVE ACTION OF GEN. URUBU QUICKLY SETTLES ANY STREET FIGHTING

By WILLIAM FOLGER

(United Press Staff Correspondent) (Copyright, 1930, by United Press)

Buenos Aires, Sept. 10.—A growing confidence in the new Argentine government's ability to maintain and foster national prosperity was apparent on all sides today.

The quick and decisive action with which Gen. Jose E. Uruburu met the situation arising from Monday night's street fighting seems to have allayed many fears. It was felt everywhere that the government had come through its first test of strength successfully.

With a score of influential followers of former President Hipolito Yrigoyen under arrest and government troops maintaining tranquility, the capital regarded the possibility of a strong counter-revolutionary movement as remote, and today's newspapers predicted an early return to normalcy.

Forging ahead with new policies, the government revealed that the first question it will take up will be that of appointing an ambassador to the United States, thus filling a vacancy of several years' standing.

Despite rumors to the contrary, there were no known executions of government enemies in Buenos Aires yesterday. General Augustin Justo, commanding the military forces of the country, issued the following statement:

"I authorize the United Press to say on my word of honor that there have been no executions in Buenos Aires in connection with last night's (Monday night's) fighting. The report is absolutely false."

Simultaneous with an important meeting of the cabinet to discuss the financial situation, representatives of 14 banks met and decided to offer the government a loan of 50,000,000 pesos for 180 days at five per cent interest without any guarantees. It was understood the offer probably would be formulated today.

Government officials believed the improvement in Argentine bonds and the peso was one of the chief victories of the revolution.

WANTED TO SMOKE LIKE BIG MEN

13-YEAR-OLD LAD OF CALEDONIA CHARGED WITH MAIL STEALING

Caledonia, Minn., Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Because he wanted to smoke like "big men," although he had neither his parent's consent to do so nor the money to buy cigarettes, a 13-year-old boy today awaited hearing in Houston county juvenile court on charges of mail stealing.

Postal inspectors arrested the lad after a search for nearly a year to find where mail addressed to the register of deeds had been disappearing.

They found it, and the boy too, in an old barn, used as a safe retreat by youngsters where they might come to smoke cigarettes away from the prying eyes of parents.

"I only took the mail to get money to buy cigarettes," the boy confessed referring to small fees of 25 or 50 cents that are often sent with legal papers to be recorded.

The clue which led to the finding of the lad was the discovery of a lot of legal documents in the barn by workmen who were repairing it.

HURLEY INSPECTS MAJOR FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT

BIRDS POINT SPILLWAY DESIGNED TO PROTECT CAIRO, ILL., FROM FLOODS

FROM VANTAGE POINT OF 5,000 FEET ALTITUDE HE WILL FLY OVER PROJECT

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard the Steamboat Mississippi on the Mississippi, Sept. 10.—The first of the major flood control projects on the lower Mississippi, the Birds Point, Nel Madrid, spillway, was designated for inspection by Secretary of War Hurley today as he continued down the river.

Designed to protect Cairo, Illinois, from floods, the spillway has been the focal point of controversy in adjacent sections of the river, some interests contending it will be a strong safeguard, and others that it creates a new hazard. From a vantage point of 5,000 feet aloft in an army plane Hurley plans to view it as a whole.

Hurley has ordered his personal pilot, Lieut. C. W. Coulson, to meet him at Cairo with an army transport plane. During his survey of the Mississippi the war secretary plans to use the ship to inspect many angles of proposed improvements.

First reaction to Hurley's announced investigation of charges that some contractors on river work for the government have reduced wages below those obtaining when their contracts were made was received today by Hurley in a telegram from John P. Frey of the American Federation of Labor.

"Congratulations on your action," Frey wired. "Your statement that wages for civilians employed on flood control work would not be reduced and your action in ordering an investigation of alleged reductions by private contractors engaged in flood control work was timely and highly advisable."

Harry Jacobs, Louisiana state engineer, wired Hurley today asking permission to join the secretary's inspection party at Helena, Ark., and explain the Louisiana plan of flood control. He was extended a welcome.

Last night Hurley interrupted his study of flood control to witness an old style Mississippi show boat play. The secretary's boat was passing at Grand Tower, Illinois, when the notes of a calliope were heard across the water.

The war secretary ordered his boat put about. He was welcomed aboard the floating theatre and with his party listened to a mingled repertoire of drama and comedy.

CAPONE CROWD IN FINISH FIGHT

FORCES OF LAW AND ORDER ARRAYED AGAINST THEM AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Battle lines were drawn today for a "revolutionary" war to the finish between two powerful "cooperative" armies in Chicago.

On one side were aligned the city's gangsters and her racketeers, rallying to the battle cry of "Scarface" Al Capone that they must fight or perish together.

The forces of law and order, big business and labor made up the contingents of the opposing army. They rallied in answer to the defiant challenge of Judge John P. McGorty that "racketeering must be stamped out now and forever."

The judge's challenge was delivered to the September grand jury. The order and its immediate result's followed closely reports Capone was organizing all the city's gangsters and racketeers under his banner of "Al for all and all for Al."

State's Attorney John A. Swanson was to go before the grand jury today, offering the services of his department in the new "cooperative" movement.

As the opposing armies were assembled, the racketeers fired the first shot, a bomb which exploded in the doorway of the Maison Lorraine, a beauty parlor.

Owners of the Maison Lorraine had refused to pay the tribute which one of Chicago's 146 racketeers agencies demands for "protecting" all beauty parlors.

Congressman Harold Knutson who was originally instrumental in calling the meeting, will be one of the speakers. He announced recently at the introduction a bill in congress at the December session setting a minimum water level for the lakes beyond which

FORCES RALLY TO FIGHT FOR RIGHTS, FUTURE OF STATE

INSIST UPON PERMANENT MINIMUM WATER LEVEL IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA LAKES

THOUSANDS OF FISH ARE DEAD, THE RESULT OF THE OPENING OF FEDERAL DAMS

Fight any unnecessary water diversion and save Minnesota! With this as their banner, Northern Minnesota will rally its forces to the man to oppose further proposed plans to divert water from its lakes and levels meeting a resolution at a lakes meeting Thursday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to recommend to the U. S. War Department the establishment of a permanent minimum water level to keep enough water in its lakes to preserve shore lines and fish life.

A very unpleasant taste of what may result in the loss of millions of dollars annually to Minnesota from tourists unless checked has already been stomachached by the murder of thousands of whitefish in Gull and Cross lakes due to the opening of government dams for the six-foot Mississippi river channel.

What will be the ultimate result if a nine-foot channel in the river is established?

To what figure will the income of over $90,000,000 in tourist business annually in the state shrink to?

What will Northern Minnesota do with mud flats with thousands of beautiful summer cottages stranded on bleak shore lines, its trees dying?

Honest in their belief that every human resident of Minnesota will suffer and the suffering will heighten each year should diversion of lake water continue to satisfy an obsession that water transportation of freight will lower rates, Northern Minnesota manufacturers, resort owners, farmers and city dwellers are aroused and the meeting Thursday will find a large group gathered to unite in taking steps for their protection and that of the state and nation, as a whole.

The lowering of water by the opening of dams forcing cold water out and the subsequent settling of hot water was blamed today by A. P. Cardle, deputy game warden, Brainerd, for the killing of thousands of whitefish at Cross and Gull lakes.

A visit to either of these lakes will substantiate this statement. One cannot walk a yard on the shore line of either lake without finding dead fish. The stench is sickening, the sight unbearable.

"There is no question in my mind but that the loss of these fish is directly due to the sudden lowering of the lakes through the opening of the dams. If Northern Minnesota lakes are to be sacrificed for the benefit of a purely commercial enterprise, then Northern Minnesota must fight. And it will be a fight in which the whole section must engage. If the government shows the section no more consideration in the enlargement of the waterways project than it has in the handling of the water levels program, we are in for a beating. Our lakes and wild life are our best asset and they must not be damaged, nine-foot waterway or no nine-foot waterway," Game Warden Cardle declared.

Thousands of fish have been caught as they left the deep water to feed in the shallows. They become choked by the hot water. Cross and Whitefish lakes dropped 34 inches this year and Big Trout lake, once one of the most beautiful in the north with a shore line covered with pines and expensive summer cottages has receded about 200 yards, leaving that part of the shore line an eye sore, caked with mud and sand.

"When you pull down one lake you are pulling them all down. When you divert water from Gull lake you lower Hubert and other lakes in the country. Everyone in the state likes to fish, they like to eat fish caught from the lakes. Take the water out and you'll have no fish," Mr. Cardle said.

The only lakes in the district where fish were killed were those where government dams are located. Mille Lacs is an exception because it is a large lake and very shallow. Many fish are expected to die in that lake every year.

"Everyone in the community should be interested in preserving the lakes and should fight tooth and nail," Mr. Cardle declared.

To Form Organization

The meeting Thursday will also result in the formation of a permanent organization to look after the interests of Northern Minnesota's lakes.

This organization will carry the fight through to the finish and will receive the whole-hearted support of the north country.

The meeting will be opened at 2:30 P. M. by C. A. Ryan, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Congressman Harold Knutson who was originally instrumental in calling the meeting, will be one of the speakers. He announced recently at the introduction a bill in congress at the December session setting a minimum water level for the lakes beyond which

Cars have thrown wheels before but generally when a car throws a wheel the wheel doesn't travel on under the car and then come up through the driver's seat. That is just what happened this morning when Ray and Leonard Adair were turning from Laurel street onto Broadway. The spider near the left wheel rolled back under the car and came smashing through the frame of the car under the driver, Leonard Adair, owner of the car, who was driving, was raised bodily from his seat behind the steering wheel by the protruding wheel. The incident furnished amusement for a number of downtown spectators. Fortunately neither occupant of his car was hurt in the freak accident.

Wellesley Hills, Mass., Sept. 10. — (UP)—Relief from the current business depression may be expected this fall, Roger W. Babson, famed statistician, predicted today.

Though refusing to discuss the outlook for 1931, he told the 17th annual National Business Conference that "the tremendous drop registered by the Babson chart since last September must soon strike bottom if it has not already done so," and he was confident there would be a definite business pick-up the coming autumn.

"A year ago today, a financial writer stated that all parts of the country were optimistic except Babson Park, which had the 'blues,' Babson said. 'Today I should say that most parts of the country have the 'blues,' while Babson Park is optimistic. In making this statement, I am referring only to our general outlook on the immediate situation, without making any long-term forecasts one way or the other."

"BLUEBERRY WAR" EVENTS RECALLED

W. W. Hartley, 83, Sheds New Light on Cause in Letter to Mrs.
Irma Camp Hartley

Lynching Resorted to for Punishment in Taking Girl's Life

Adding new facts to the "Blueberry War" which historical event was recently recalled in a story in the Dispatch, W. W. Hartley, 83, of Mountain View, Calif., pioneer Crow Wing county resident, writes of them in an interesting letter to his cousin, Mrs. Irma Camp Hartley, county superintendent of schools who has consented to its publication in part as follows:

"I was clerk of the district court at the time referred to and thus custodian of the records pertaining to the McArthur case. I was also a 'friend of the family' as you might say and knew the murdered girl well. (Editor's note: The so called "Blueberry War" was started by the murder of a white girl and subsequent hanging of two Indians. Following the hanging an alarm was spread that Indians were rising in revolt and planned to invade Brainerd. When a contingent from Ft. Ripley and reinforcements from St. Paul arrived the Indians, supposedly in revolt, were peacefully picking blueberries).

"My first employment in 1870 in Minnesota, was with Morrison and McArthur, George A. Morrison and Billy McArthur, at Leech Lake, White Earth, Wild Rice, etc., trading with the Indians. The murdered girl was Billy's sister, a lame girl. Wallace Bean, who lived on the prairie, near McArthur's, was chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, and David McArthur, father of Billy, and the lame girl, and Fred W. Peake, of Peake and Wakefield, of Crow Wing, comprised the Board of County Commissioners who appointed me county auditor when Frank M. Campbell resigned to go to White Earth and locate 160 acres on the reservation when it was thrown open to settlement. The board later appointed me to several county offices and recommended me to Judge McKelvy for clerk of the district court when Charley Beaulieu resigned also to go to White Earth and get his 160 acres. There were quite a number of Crow Wing boys entitled under this act who took up land. Later Governor Austin appointed me probate judge and in one way and another I obtained appointment as deputy register of deeds, appointed by my old friend Clem H. Beaulieu, who was register. Later when the county seat was moved to Brainerd, Ed. B. Lynde, county treasurer, appointed me deputy treasurer and William Wade, sheriff, appointed me deputy sheriff. About this time G. W. Holland, attorney at law at Ottotail City, came to Brainerd and told me he would like to move to Brainerd and get the appointment as county attorney, which he did and he and I built a small one room office on the northwest corner of 5th and Front streets, which then became the county seat."

"Morris C. Russell of the Tribune, was really the cause of the Blueberry War. He was always very timid of Indians and on several occasions packed up and took his family to a place of safety when an Indian looked at him. It was he who called on the governor for troops, etc. I told him at the time there was nothing to it and laughed at him.

"The inside facts were: When the remarks overheard between the young Indian and his squaw in the tent became known, the two Indians were arrested and put in the Brainerd jail. I was one of a committee of five appointed by citizens to take them out at a time, at night, after midnight, out of the jail and give them a ride a couple of miles out of the city and give them an examination and test.

"Our interpreter was a prominent halfbreed, well known, afterwards an Episcopal clergyman at White Earth, a very dear friend of mine, since gone to the Great Majority, comparatively quite recently. Obtaining access to the jail we took the two Indians, one at a time, in a wagon about two miles out of the city into a bunch of timber where they were given to understand that we were to give them an opportunity to make complete confession and save further trouble or take three others of the committee drove to the spot and examined it. The body had been eaten by animals, but the bones and parts of the clothing were found, one a piece of plaid cloth that her mother quickly identified as a part of the girl's underwear, even to the buttons.

"Then followed an investigation of the possibilities of convicting them if brought to trial and it was determined that the chances of convicting them or either of them would be very slim. A lynching then soon followed conducted by outsiders, headed by a man named Northrup as I understand the name at the time if my memory is correct. No one of our committee or anyone in Brainerd that I ever knew had any hand in it. When the maren upon the jail started, that night of the hanging, I knew instantly what was up. It was in the air. Quiet, not a sound you could call by name, but you knew by instinct what was going on. A clear case of justice if there ever was a just hanging.

"The excuse made by the young Indian for killing her was that she struck him in the face with the end of her shawl as he took hold of her walking along the road. I never had any regrets for the part I took in it."

A Tale of Heroism

To one accustomed to the wastes of the North, the reading of the diary of the Andree party brings back memories which carry a train of emotions. The simple recital tells of the balloon flight to the Arctic 33 years ago, the landing and the trek homeward, dying on a bleak island with faces turned to the land of their birth.

When Andree and his companions set out on their balloon flight they took one chance in a thousand of ever getting back home. The balloon was no dirigible and once landed was useless for further travel. The landing of the balloon on ice hummocks was attended with every element of danger and they scored a great triumph in being able to set foot on the ice and save much of their outfit.

It is pathetic to read how the little party celebrated when they sighted White Island. It meant so much to have solid earth for a footing instead of shifting ice that was liable to crack into jagged sections and precipitate them into the crevasses.

The little canvas boat was useless for long distance navigating. Any ice tentacle would tear it from end to end. The greatest heroism came when they became resigned to their fate, made their last home on the island and kept their diary record in the diary.

Andree's last thought was to preserve this record of their flight and their wanderings and observations, content to face death if only their records were preserved for them who would at some time come after.

The last entry in the diary as of October 17, 1897, as reported in King Features Syndicated article is: "Home—7:05 a. m."

It appends an observation that the men were thinking of the home on White Island. It was not this home. It was the home in the old country where lived their families, their friends, all the associations that made life dear and tender.

And so they passed away in the dark, deep, silent spaces of the North where the silence is absolutely depressing in its effect. Their last thoughts, no doubt, were that some one would find their bodies and take them home to rest at peace under Scandinavian sod.

Proximity of Christmas

MACEY's of New York in large advertisements announced that Christmas was only one hundred and some more days distant. In other years they did not dwell on Christmas until Thanksgiving had been tucked away.

Today there are only 89 shopping days left until Christmas. It is not too early to think of the great holiday, the best on the calendar. There is a woman among our acquaintances who generally gets caught in the maelstrom of last minute buyers and nearly wrecks her sweet disposition. Last year she made an earnest resolve to commence her Christmas shopping sanely and in moderate sequences starting immediately after the Fourth of July.

As Macey's so truly advertised, you can buy anything and everything for Christmas now with the exception of candy and cookies and they are so good they would not keep long. Half the trouble in the eleventh hour rush centers on what things to buy and even when your mind is made up, which is half the battle, the late buyer finds that the selection of gifts is limited and that substitutions must be made.

So do your planning and buying early this year.

Football at Minnesota University

THE Minnesota-Stanford football game October 11 will be a sell out and other games will also draw large attendances. One party of fans will journey to Minneapolis from Winnipeg by air and rail and at least two special trains will be run from the Pacific coast to the game, according to railroad officials. Les Schroeder and his force of ticket salesmen are busy handling mail inquiries and orders, and they are piling in for all the games. The lead off Dakota game will attract an army of farmers from the prairies who will motor in their flivvers to see the game.

Old graduates, freshmen, everybody interested in the University, will crowd down to the games to see what Coach Fritz Crisler is doing with his new material. He should be given every possible support and encouragement, for he faces a difficult task molding into shape much new material.

The tang of autumn brings football in the air and the fans are increasing in number every season. Excitement is so intense that, to our knowledge, nobody has ever caught cold at a game, no matter how long he was anchored to a stadium seat. It adds to comfort to carry along a fur coat or other heavy coat and a wool blanket or two.

In New Dress

THE Ironton Ranger appears in a new dress and a very becoming one too. The range weekly has changed from six to seven columns and is now a paper that is practically home print on every page.

The type is large and easily read, news is plentiful and the "locals" cover town and range thoroughly. There is good advertising patronage. Miss Anna Himrod is publisher and Earl F. Vail the new editor.

Dollar Grows in Buying Power

THE dollar bill has shrunk in size, but its purchasing power has increased.

The dollar which the American citizen earned in 1926, if he still has it, will purchase 15 cents more goods now than then, and it will purchase 14 cents more than the dollar a year ago, according to statistics gathered by the Department of Labor.

THE small boy loves his dog. When a father in Wales drowned a dog which had developed distemper, his 11-year-old son drowned himself in a nearby lake, heartbroken over the loss of his pet. This father should have explained matters to the boy before he killed the dog and thus averted a tragedy in the family circle.

Early Advertising

All advertising in early newspapers was in the form of "readers," like the present-day classified ad. These appeared in the early English newspapers, and the first copy of the Boston News Letter, printed in 1794, regarded by many as the first newspaper in the present meaning of the term, included ads under classified heads.

MINNESOTA'S FOOTBALL TEAM IS IN DIFFICULT SPOT

WEAK SQUAD FACES 6 STRONG MAJOR OPPONENTS

COACH CRISLER BELIEVES UNDER-DOG POSITION WILL WORK TO ITS OWN ADVANTAGE

BACKFIELD ORIGINALLY AFFECTED BY LOSS OF MANY EXPERIENCED PLAYERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Minnesota's football team for the coming season will be in a difficult spot, sending a squad weaker than last year's against six major opponents, most of which will be stronger, but Head Coach H. O. Crisler, new leader of the Gophers, believes its very position as under-dog will work to its own advantage.

"No team can stand the loss of men like Tanner, Pulkabek, Oja, Kakela and Langenberg on the line and Nagurski, Pharnum and Barnhart in the backfield without being weakened," Crisler today told the United Press in his first formal pronouncement on Minnesota's prospects.

As for the schedule, Crisler believes it has advantages and disadvantages. With breathing spells between conference games with Indiana, Northwestern and Michigan, even the two hard games away from home at the end of the season will not be so bad, he said, but "the real difficulty lies in the top heavy first part of the schedule. Minnesota will have to develop with extreme rapidity to be ready for Vanderbilt and Stanford on the second and third Saturdays of the season."

"However, eleven fighting men are hard to beat and they haven't beaten us before we play. According to the dope, therefore, it looks as if we are in for a tough time of it. Fortunately the dope has been known to upset, especially in football," Crisler warned.

Minnesota's team this year will have to rely largely on remaining regulars from the 1929 squad and the reserves, it was predicted. Only a few men

NEW SYSTEM COACHING AT MACALESTER COLLEGE

AL GOWANS IS NEW COACH AT THE INSTITUTION

PUTTING CANDIDATES FOR 1930 FOOTBALL MACHINE THROUGH PRELIMINARIES

14 MEMBERS OF LAST YEAR'S SQUAD ANSWER THE FIRST CALL

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 10.—(U.P.)—Al Gowans, new coach with a new system of coaching, is putting candidates for Macalester College's 1930 football machine through preliminary paces this week. Practice started Monday and for the first week or so will consist chiefly of fundamentals.

Gowans, former Des Moines University star, will have complete charge of the Mac varsity this year. He has already put the Macs through a spring practice and has hopes of getting enough practice with his system making a good showing in the state race this year.

Fourteen members of last year's squad answered first call. Among them were six letter men: Captain Koepke, Boerner, Nielsen, Billy Davis, Krampritz and Suomalainen. Three varsity squad men who did not win letters last year, but who are out after them this season are Gutz, Ellis and Hollis Johnson. Of the freshmen squad five reported: McAlpin, Byson, Severud, Ehnbohn and Fitzsimmons.

Gowans had expected more of last year's stars to return, but several fell by the wayside. Nevertheless, he will have some sort of a veteran nucleus around which to form his team.

The Macs have no veteran quarterback, but it is possible that Gowans will shift Koepke to the signal calling post. For the fullback position he will have Bert Boerner, who will be playing his fourth year. In the line will be Krampritz and Nielsen, guards, and Davis at center.

Jack McCallum is handling this year's frosh team for Gowans.

The Macs open their season against Stout Sept. 27. Oct. 4 St. Paul Luther plays at Mac. Oct. 11 St. Olaf plays at Mac. Oct. 18 is an open date. Oct. 25 the Macs meet St. Thomas, Nov. 1 Concordia, followed by an open date Nov. 8. The season closes Nov. 14 against Hamline in the homecoming game.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT HANGS IN THE BALANCE

FOUR CONTENDERS ENTER SECOND STAGE OF CRUCIAL SERIES TODAY

CUBS VS. ROBINS, CARDINALS VS. GIANTS—CLOSE GAMES EXPECTED

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Sept. 10.—With the National League pennant hanging in the balance, the four contenders entered the second stage of their crucial series today, the Cubs and Robins playing at Ebbets Field and the Cardinals and Giants battling at the Polo Grounds.

Victories for the easterners in the opening game yesterday left the Cubs 2½ games ahead of the Cardinals and Robins, virtually tied for second place, and 3 games ahead of the fourth-place Giants.

If the Robins and Giants win again today, the two eastern contenders will hold the balance of power in the race. The Cubs' collapse seems too genuine, as they have dropped seven out of their last ten games and their pitching staff appears worn out from the hard struggle to the top.

With their ace, Pat Malone, beaten 3-0 in the opening game yesterday, the Cubs were hard up for a starting pitcher today. Manager Joe McCarthy had his choice between Charley Root and Bud Teachout, both of whom have faltered badly of late.

As for Brooklyn, Manager Wilbert Robinson planned to shoot Adolfo Luque at the Cubs, and the betting was 7 to 5 that the canny Cuban would win his game. For tomorrow, Robbie has Dazzy Vance, who has been treated none too kindly by the Cubs this season but who seems a better bet than any pitcher Chicago can send to the mound.

Thanks to the wise hurling of Clarence Mitchell, 39-year-old southpaw, the Giants have moved back into a dangerous position. Mitchell, last of the southpaw spit-ball pitchers, held the Cubs to seven hits and allowed but two men to reach second as he pitched the Giants to a 2-1 victory, breaking St. Louis' 7-game winning streak.

John J. McGraw watched yesterday's game from the clubhouse window in center field. Bancroft, who has been managing the Giants for almost two months, was banished for protesting decisions, and the Giants finished the game under the command of Irish Meusel, former outfielder.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs refuses to concede that his team has given up the battle.

"I won't say the Cubs will win the pennant," he said, "but I'll say that they'll fight to the very last ditch. There is no truth to the rumors that the Cubs are fighting among themselves."

NOT since Addie Joss and Nap Lajoie were in their prime have Cleveland fans been prouder of a pitcher and second baseman than they are of Wes Ferrell and Johnny Hodapp, who are super-starring for the Indians this season. Ferrell may prove the American League's leading hurler this year while Hodapp is pressing Charley Gehring, of Detroit, for premier honors at his position.

Last season, his first in fast company, Ferrell pitched twenty-one winning games and ten defeats. Wes had blinding speed and but little else until well into August. When veteran sluggers began to gauge his constant fast one, he took some horrid thumpings but at that his pitching was skilled enough to win with marked frequency.

During the Winter, Ferrell and his brother, Reck, catcher on the St. Louis Browns, indulged in much battery practice with another brother, now a rookie with Memphis, wielding the bat. Wes was aiming to perfect a slow ball and change of pace. How well he succeeded the records up to midseason showed. Wes, with 23 victories by August 28 was heading for that thirty victory goal—a record unachieved by any major league pitcher for more than ten years. Ferrell is only 22 years old.

Last Spring he was a holdout. The Cleveland management informed him that he'd have to prove his 1929 brilliancy was not a flash in the pan. Wes certainly has done that, and the Indians' wampum wise men will need more than medicine men's eloquence to keep Ferrell on their payroll in 1931.

Hodapp, always promising, but handicapped by injuries, has finally come to his own with a sustained brand of keystone play worthy of Lajoie traditions. He's a consistent, timely and hard hitter, too. Both Ferrell and Hodapp definitely deserve listing with the outstanding major league stars of 1930 already.

from the freshmen squad can be relied upon.

"I can think of two or three men on the squad now who have great physical gifts and need only the competitive spirit to make first string players. If they can be made to snap into things our prospects will be brighter," Crisler said.

"Indiana will be a bad spot for us because the Hoosiers come to Minneapolis just after the first big climax of the season—Stanford. Minnesota, however, has the advantage of being the under-dog—and the under-dog is always dangerous. He always has a chance. We refuse to be beaten before the kick-off."

RODE IN AS "BO"— TO LEAVE IN STATE

8 CHICAGO POLICEMEN TO PAY HERMAN ELLER'S FARE HOME TO CHEYENNE, WYO.

Chicago, Sept. 10. — (UP) — Herman Eller, 26, who rode into Chicago six weeks ago as a hobo, will leave the city in state. He is dead. Eight policemen will pay his fare home.

Out of work and money, Eller left Cheyenne, Wyo., a month and a half ago his wife and four children in Cheyenne and came here on a freight train. He looked for work, but found only promises.

Last Saturday he received a letter. His hands trembled as he finished reading it. He ran several blocks to a railway right of way. Excited and unnerved, he attempted to board the first train that passed going west. It was a fast train.

A Brookfield policeman found Eller, crushed and broken, on the tracks and in the man's pocket found the letter.

It was from Eller's wife. It said the authorities were going to send her and the children to the county home and that rather than go she would kill the children and herself.

There are only eight men on the Brookfield force, but they raised $20 quickly and sent it to Mrs. Eller. Now the police are going to pay Eller's way back home.

PREDICTS AMERICA WILL REPEAL DRY ACT

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 10. — (UP) — Prediction that America will repeal the dry act, but never get back to the saloon was made today by Sir Allan Sykes, English baronet, former member of parliament, who is visiting here.

"Temperance rather than prohibition is the only cure for the evil, and sooner or later Americans will realize this," Sir Allan declared.

"In my country," he explained, "the government allows saloons to be opened only on certain hours. In London they are closed by midnight and earlier than that in rural districts."

"I think that there has been more drinking and of poorer quality liquor here since prohibition. It is the nature of human beings to be obstinate to such a law. My American friends say when they serve me drinks, 'We do not like to violate the law, but there should be a limit to all law-making.'"

RODE IN AS "BO"— TO LEAVE IN STATE

8 CHICAGO POLICEMEN TO PAY HERMAN EILER'S FARE HOME TO CHEYENNE, WYO.

Chicago, Sept. 10. — (U.P.) — Herman Eiler, 26, who rode into Chicago six weeks ago as a hobo, will leave the city in state. He is dead. Eight policemen will pay his fare home.

Out of work and money, Eiler left Cheyenne, Wyo., a month and a half ago his wife and four children in Cheyenne and came here on a freight train. He looked for work, but found only promises.

Last Saturday he received a letter. His hands trembled as he finished reading it. He ran several blocks to a railway right of way. Excited and unnerved, he attempted to board the first train that passed going west. It was a fast train.

A Brookfield policeman found Eiler, crushed and broken, on the tracks and in the man's pocket found the letter.

It was from Eiler's wife. It said the authorities were going to send her and the children to the county home and that rather than go she would kill the children and herself.

There are only eight men on the Brookfield force, but they raised $20 quickly and sent it to Mrs. Eiler. Now the police are going to pay Eiler's way back home.

PREDICTS AMERICA WILL REPEAL DRY ACT

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 10. — (U.P.) — Prediction that America will repeal the dry act, but never get back to the saloon was made today by Sir Allan Sykes, English baronet, former member of parliament, who is visiting here.

"Temperance rather than prohibition is the only cure for the evil, and sooner or later Americans will realize this," Sir Allan declared.

"In my country," he explained, "the government allows saloons to be opened only on certain hours. In London they are closed by midnight and earlier than that in rural districts."

"I think that there has been more drinking and of poorer quality liquor here since prohibition. It is the nature of human beings to be obstinate to such a law. My American friends say when they serve me drinks, 'We do not like to violate the law, but there should be a limit to all law-making.'"

REICHSTAG ELECTION CAMPAIGN ENDS SUNDAY

Berlin, Sept. 10. — (U.P.) — The reichstag election campaign will end Sunday in a nation-wide poll after one of the most violent political contests in the history of the republic.

The casualties were also estimated at least 20 per cent higher.

October 16 to 20 are the dates selected for the visit of the International Highway Engineers to Minnesota. This state will be one of a limited number of states to be visited by a group of the official delegates representing the leading nations of the eastern and western hemispheres. Following the International Road Congress to be held in Washington, Oct. 7 to 11, three parties of 100 each will be made up, one group going through the eastern states, one south and one to the Northwest.

The delegates will arrive at Duluth the morning of Thursday, Oct. 16, and spend the forenoon inspecting the ore docks and other points of interest. They will travel over trunk highways 11 and 35, via Eveleth and Virginia to Hibbing, where they will see the mines and spend the night. Friday, Oct. 17, they will travel over trunk highways 35 and 18, stopping at Mille Lacs for luncheon and reaching Minneapolis for dinner and a night stop. Saturday, Oct. 18, will be spent visiting road machinery plants, the State University, the Capitol, and other points of interest in the Twin Cities, with a trip to the State Prison at Stillwater for luncheon, and dinner and a night stop in St. Paul. Sunday morning, Oct. 19, the delegates will leave for Rochester, where they will spend the afternoon. Monday, Oct. 20, they will leave for Iowa, reaching the state line over trunk highway No. 20.

The tour will bring some of the leading highway officials of the nations represented. The members of the western party are spending more time in Minnesota than in any other state, due to the wide variety of road problems offered by Minnesota's varied topography, as well as Minnesota's reputation as a pioneer in studying many highway problems. Commissioner C. M. Babcock has been asked to prepare a detailed log of the route, showing the history and the cost of construction and maintenance of each stretch of road to be traveled, as well as supplying data on construction methods and other detailed information. Entertainment and speech-making will be very limited on the entire tour.

The western party will also visit Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri and Michigan. All three tours will end at Detroit where the automobile plants will be visited.

October 16 to 20 are the dates selected for the visit of the International Highway Engineers to Minnesota. This state will be one of a limited number of states to be visited by a group of the official delegates representing the leading nations of the eastern and western hemispheres. Following the International Road Congress to be held in Washington, Oct. 7 to 11, three parties of 100 each will be made up, one group going through the eastern states, one south and one to the Northwest.

The delegates will arrive at Duluth the morning of Thursday, Oct. 16, and spend the forenoon inspecting the ore docks and other points of interest. They will travel over trunk highways 11 and 35, via Eveleth and Virginia to Hibbing, where they will see the mines and spend the night. Friday, Oct. 17, they will travel over trunk highways 35 and 18, stopping at Mille Lacs for luncheon and reaching Minneapolis for dinner and a night stop. Saturday, Oct. 18, will be spent visiting road machinery plants, the State University, the Capitol, and other points of interest in the Twin Cities, with a trip to the State Prison at Stillwater for luncheon, and dinner and a night stop in St. Paul. Sunday morning, Oct. 19, the delegates will leave for Rochester, where they will spend the afternoon. Monday, Oct. 20, they will leave for Iowa, reaching the state line over trunk highway No. 20.

The tour will bring some of the leading highway officials of the nations represented. The members of the western party are spending more time in Minnesota than in any other state, due to the wide variety of road problems offered by Minnesota's varied topography, as well as Minnesota's reputation as a pioneer in studying many highway problems. Commissioner C. M. Babcock has been asked to prepare a detailed log of the route, showing the history and the cost of construction and maintenance of each stretch of road to be traveled, as well as supplying data on construction methods and other detailed information. Entertainment and speech-making will be very limited on the entire tour.

The western party will also visit Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri and Michigan. All three tours will end at Detroit where the automobile plants will be visited.

PROBE IN R. AND B. WORK DELAYED

Investigation to Reopen on Arrival of State Examiners Monday

County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan continued today in his investigation of the case of A. B. Peterson, bridge foreman charged with padding the payroll at the Gull River bridge work on the new Pine Beach road while a deeper probe into all expenditures in road and bridge work in the county was halted temporarily until the return of state public examiners expected here next Monday.

Peterson, scheduled to have been arraigned in municipal court this morning, requested postponement of the arraignment for several days. This Mr. Sullivan agreed to. 25 Men to Build, Recondition Structures on Credit Farms in District

H. H. Flowers, secretary of the State Rural Credit Department on his visit to Brainerd today in connection with an inspection tour of the district in company with John H. Krekelberg, district representative, outlined a progressive campaign in reconditioning and construction of buildings on farms handled by the department.

Contracts have been let for 11 barns and two farm homes in the northwestern part of the state, Mr. Flowers said.

Twenty-five men are at present employed in building eight buildings and repairing 25 others in this district, Mr. Krekelberg announced.

The work will continue until the snow flies, both officials of the department predicted. "We hope to put every farm handled by the department in this district in the very best shape. Two tons of paint have been purchased for that purpose," Mr. Krekelberg said.

There are at present 1560 farms in the state owned by the department, and 160 farms in this district covering six counties.

Discussing crops Mr. Flowers maintained that the crops this year as a whole in Minnesota were better than last year despite the drought.

The SEA BRIDE

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

FAITH KILCUP had always looked upon Captain Noll Wing, of the whaler, Sally Sims, as a master and tower of strength, but shortly after their marriage he changed. Dissipation and old age were exacting their toll. The men of his crew no longer feared him. Faith was disillusioned. Dan'l Tobey, second mate, who loves Faith, vainly tries to discredit Noll before Faith. In a quarrel Noll kicks out the eye of Mauger, a member of the crew. Thereafter, he fears Mauger's vengeance. When the Sally Sims puts into a lonely island, Faith goes ashore. She meets an ex-sailor named Brander, who goes with her to join Noll's crew. Dan'l takes an instant dislike to him. Faith's brother, Roy, also resents Brander. Dan'l comes upon Faith listening to Brander's singing and is consumed with jealousy. He intimates that Brander gossiped about Faith. Roy, raging, goes to Brander.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

BRANDER released Roy and stepped back and again Roy showed that he was more than a boy. He did not spring at Brander; he did not curse; he did not weep. He stood straight as a wire, and his eyes were hot as flame. His voice, when he found it, was husky and low, so that none but Brander could hear.

"I don't know what you're saying about my sister," said Roy. "Whatever it is, it's not true. If you say it again, I'll kill you!"

Brander's eyes shadowed unhappily.

"Why do you think I have said anything?" he asked.

"No matter!" said Roy harshly. "I know. Keep your tongue between your lips hereafter, or I'll shoot you like a dog. That's all!"

Mauger, the one-eyed man, had an increasing hold on the imagination of Noll Wing. The captain encountered the other wherever he went; and he never encountered Mauger without an uneasy feeling that was half dread, half remorse. He could not bear to look at Mauger's face, with the dreadful hollow covered by the twitching lid; and Mauger, sensing this, put himself in the captain's path whenever he had the opportunity. Noll wished he could be rid of the one-eyed man; and in his moments of rage he thought murderously of Mauger. But for the most part he feared and dreaded the other, and shivered at the little man's malicious and incessant chuckling.

Again and again he spoke to Faith of Mauger, voicing his fear, wishing that she might reassure him; till Faith wearied of it, and would say no more. He spoke of his dread to Mr. Ham, who thought the captain was joking, and laughed at him harshly. Mr. Ham lacked imagination.

Brander, as has been said, was friendly with Mauger. He was sorry for the little man, and he found in Mauger a singularly persistent spirit of cheer, which he liked. Brander, for that matter, was a friend of all the men in the fo'c'sle, but because Mauger was marked by the cabin his friendship for Mauger was more frequently noted. Dan'l had seen it, had pointed it out to Willis Cox.

Cap'n Wing came on deck one afternoon, a few minutes before the masthead man sighted a pod of whales to the southward. The captain was more cheerful than he had been for weeks; he was filled with something like the vigor of a more youthful days. There was joyful turbulence in him, like the exuberance of an athlete. He stamped the deck, striding back and forth.

When the whales were sighted the men sprang to the boats. Mauger, since Willis Cox's tragic experience, had been put in the fourth mate's boat, with Brander. Brander and Mauger were side by side in their positions as they prepared the boat for lowering. But the whales were still well away, the Sally could cruise nearer them, and Noll Wing did not at once give the signal to lower. He stalked along the deck.

As he passed where Mauger stood he marked that the line in the after tub was a little out of coil. That might mean danger when the whale was struck and the line whistled like a snake as it ran. Noll Wing stopped, swore sulphurously, and bade Mr. Cox put his boat in order.

"Mauger, stow that line!" snapped Willis.

Mauger reached for the tub, but his single eye had not yet learned accurately to judge distance; he fumbled, and Brander, at his side, seeing his fumbling, reached out and coiled the line with a single motion. Noll Wing saw and he barked:

"Brander!"

Brander looked around.

"Yes, sir."

"When a man can't do his own work here, we don't want him. Keep your hands off Mauger's tasks!"

"I helped him without thinking, sir," Brander said respectfully. "Thought the thing was to do the work, no matter who—"

Noll Wing stepped toward him, and his eyes were blazing, not so much with anger as with sheer exuberance of strength.

"Don't talk back to me you—" he roared, and struck.

Now, Noll Wing was proud of his fists, and proud of his eye; and for fifteen years he had not failed to down his man with a single blow. But when he struck at Brander a curious thing happened. Brander's head moved a little to one side, his shoulders shifted, and Noll's big fist shot over his right shoulder. The captain's weight threw him forward; Brander stepped under Noll's arm. The two men met, face to face, their eyes not six inches apart. Noll's were blazing ferociously; but in Brander's a blue light flickered and played.

The other men waited, not breathing; the officers stepped a little nearer. Dan'l Tobey licked his lips. This would be the end of Brander! It was not etiquette to dodge the old man's blows!

But, amazingly, after seconds of silence, Noll Wing's grim face relaxed, and he lowered his raised hand. He chuckled. He laughed aloud, and clasped Brander on the shoulder.

"Good man!" he said. "Good man!"

"We'll gally the sparm," Mr. Ham called.

Noll turned and waved his hand.

"Right," he said. "Lower away, boats!"

The lean craft struck the water, the men dropped in, the chase was on.

When the boats left the Sally, Mr. Ham's in the lead as of right, Faith came from the after-deck to where Noll stood by the rail, and touched his arm. He turned and looked down at her.

There was already regretting what had happened. His recognition of Brander's courage had been the last flame of nobility from the man's soul; he was to go down, thereafter, into lower and lower depths. He was already regretful and ashamed.

And if the sea be merciful, there remain her creatures. She is the wide, blue pasture of the whale; a touch of his flukes, a crunch of his jaw, a roll of his great bulk, is enough to crush out the lives of a score of men. If he had wit to match his size, he would be invulnerable; as it is, men with their wits for weapons can strike and kill him in the waters that are his own.

"The SEA BRIDE"

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE
EVENTFUL WHALING
CRUISE

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

FAITH KILCUP had always looked upon Captain Noll Wing, of the whaler, Sally Sims, as a master and tower of strength, but shortly after their marriage he changed. Dissipation and old age were exacting their toll. The men of his crew no longer feared him. Faith was disillusioned. Dan'l Tobey, second mate, who loves Faith, vainly tries to discredit Noll before Faith. In a quarrel Noll kicks out the eye of Mauger, a member of the crew. Thereafter, he fears Mauger's vengeance. When the Sally Sims puts into a lonely island, Faith goes ashore. She meets an ex-sailor named Brander, who goes with her to join Noll's crew. Dan'l takes an instant dislike to him. Faith's brother, Roy, also resents Brander. Dan'l comes upon Faith listening to Brander's singing and is consumed with jealousy. He intimates that Brander gossiped about Faith. Roy, raging, goes to Brander.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

BRANDER released Roy and stepped back and again Roy showed that he was more than a boy. He did not spring at Brander; he did not curse; he did not weep. He stood straight as a wire, and his eyes were hot as flame. His voice, when he found it, was husky and low, so that none but Brander could hear.

"I don't know what you're saying about my sister," said Roy. "Whatever it is, it's not true. If you say it again, I'll kill you!" Brander's eyes shadowed unhappily.

"Why do you think I have said anything?" he asked.

"No matter!" said Roy harshly. "I know. Keep your tongue between your lips hereafter, or I'll shoot you like a dog. That's all!"

Mauger, the one-eyed man, had an increasing hold on the imagination of Noll Wing. The captain encountered the other wherever he went; and he never encountered Mauger without an uneasy feeling that was half dread, half remorse. He could not bear to look at Mauger's face, with the dreadful hollow covered by the twitching lid; and Mauger, sensing this, put himself in the captain's path whenever he had the opportunity. Noll wished he could be rid of the one-eyed man; and in his moments of rage he thought murderously of Mauger. But for the most part he feared and dreaded the other, and shivered at the little man's malicious and incessant chuckling.

Again and again he thought of Faith of Mauger, voicing his fear, wishing that she might reassure him; till Faith wearied of it, and would say no more. He spoke of his dread to Mr. Ham, who thought the captain was joking, and laughed at him harshly. Mr. Ham lacked imagination.

Brander, as has been said, was friendly with Mauger. He was sorry for the little man, and he found in Mauger a singularly persistent spirit of cheer, which he liked Brander for that matter. Brander was a friend of all the men in the fo'c'sle, but because Mauger was marked by the cabin his friendship for Mauger was more frequently noted. Dan'l had seen it, had pointed it out to Willis Cox.

Cap'n Wing came on deck one afternoon, a few minutes before the masthead man sighted a pod of whales to the southward. The captain was more cheerful than he had been for weeks; he was filled with something like the vigor of a more youthful days. There was joyful turbulence in him, like the submergence of an athlete. He stamped the deck, striding back and forth.

When the whales were sighted the men sprang to the boats. Mauger, since Willis Cox's tragic experience, had been put in the fourth mate's boat, with Brander, to fill the empty places there. Brander and Mauger were side by side in their position; but the whales were still well away, the Sally could cruise nearer them, and Noll Wing did not at once give the

When Faith touched his arm, he looked down and saw pride and happiness in her eyes; and with a man's curious lack of logic he was the more ashamed of what he had done because she was proud of him for it.

"That was fine, Noll!" she said softly.

"Fine—hell!" he said hoarsely. "I ought to have smashed him!"

Faith smiled; she shook her head. Her hand rested on his arm; and as he turned to look after the departing boats, she leaned a little against him.

"Fool!" he mumbled. "That's what I was. I ought to have smashed him. Now he—every man aboard—they'll think they can pull it on me."

"I was—very proud," she said. "If you had struck him, I should have been ashamed."

"That's the woman of it," he jeered. "Damn it, Faith, you can't run a whaler with kisses!"

She studied his countenance. He was flushed, nervous, his lips moving. He took off his cap to wipe his forehead; and his bald head, his gray hair, and the slack muscles of his cheeks reminded her again that he was an aging, an old man. She felt infinitely sorry for him; she patted his arm comfortingly. He shook her off.

"Yes, by God!" he swore again. "When he gets back I'll tie him up and give him the rope! I'll show the dog!"

Roy had come behind them; neither had heard him.

"That's right, sir," the boy cried. "The man thinks he's running the Sally. Sir. You've got to handle him!"

"You don't know what you're talking about, sir," he flamed at her. "You're just a girl."

"Don't have one of your rows, now," Noll said impatiently. "I'm sick of 'em! Roy, go down in the cabin and stay there."

"I can't see the boats from there," the boy complained.

Noll turned on him; and Roy backed away and disappeared. Noll watched the boats dwindling into specks across the sea. Beyond, he could see, now and then, the white spouts of the whales. Faith watched beside him.

Whether, in the normal course of things, Noll would have carried out his threat to whip Brander cannot be known. Chance, the dark chance of the whale-fisheries, intervened.

Tragedy always hangs above a whaling-vessel. This must be so when six men in a puny boat, with slivers of iron and steel, go out to slay a huge creature with the strength of six hundred men.

When matters go well, they strike their whale, the harpoon makes him fast, he runs out his strength, they haul alongside and prod him with the lance, he dies; but there are so many ways in which matters may go wrong. The sea is herself a treacherous hussy when she consorts with the wind and becomes drunk with his caresses. Under his touch she swells and breaks tempestuously. She writhes and flings herself about. Her least wave can, if it chooses, smash the thin sides of a whale-boat and rob the men in it of their strength and shelter; her gentlest tussle with her consort wind can overwhelm them.

And if the sea be merciful, there remain her creatures. She is the wide, blue pasture of the whale; a touch of his flukes, a crunch of his jaw, a roll of his great bulk is enough to crush out the lives of a score of men. If he had wit to match his size, he would be invulnerable; as it is, men with their wits for weapons can strike and kill him in the waters that are his own.
